

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

SEWING MACHINES.—The "Song of the Shirt" is no longer a reality, as Hood sang it. The woman he saw in "unwomanly rags,"

"Flying her needle and thread, With fingers weary and worn, With eyelids heavy and red," who over the buttons fell asleep,

"And sewed them on in a dream," is one of the remembrances of woman's dark ages. Sewing machines have snatched seamstresses from early graves. They have stopped that "sewing with a double thread"

"A shroud as well as a shirt." Woman can now sit down to a pretty article of furniture and in a few hours do the work her poor sister was wont to steal the night to accomplish in time. The poor girls who stitched, stitched like things of death, are superseded by a never weary sewer which gives to all about a pervading air of life. The Irishman who first saw a steam paddy, after witnessing its Herculean labors for some time with astonishment and dismay, discovered one consolation in the fact that the "divish thing couldn't vote." Let some cunning Yankee invent a machine for washing and ironing, that will do its work well, and we are not sure that the old-fashioned sewing machine,

"One of the kind that a man can love, That wears a shawl and a soft kid glove; Has the merriest eye and a dainty foot, And sports the charmingest gaiter boot; And a bonnet with feathers, and ribbons and loops,

With an indefinite number of hoops," will not be relieved of the inability so consoling to Patrick. What will a woman do but plunge into the vortex of politics! Who is not afraid these labor-saving machines are furnished time to plot revolutions? Perhaps some of us Benedictines may live to see the time when permission will have to be obtained from our better halves to wear our breeches. Who knows?

CANT PHRASES.—We clip from an exchange the following lamentable wail on the evils of cant phrases. The writer evidently wishes to introduce a reform in literature and everything else, and respectfully dedicates his effort to those who talk the language:

Some authors are fond of slang phrases (Confounded improper they look!) They're getting so "plenty as blazes," And perpetrate "just like a book."

The people of other professions— Even those who "can't keep a hotel"— Indulge in these faulty expressions, And enjoy the results of a "sell."

Even ladies—God bless 'em!—why will they Deal in these cant words "on the sly?" How wonderful foolish and silly!

"I'm (hic) such a jolly old 'brick!" Young "snips," with their beards slowly sprouting, Will "imbibe" till they reel and are sick, And go through the streets wildly shouting, "I'm (hic) such a jolly old 'brick!"

Some "victims" 'gainst law have a "grudge." One, "with a white hat," I heard say; Notwithstanding that feller's a "judge," He's "slightly" 'over the bay."

If a man is unlucky and poor, And deprived of the means to get bread, He's told to "dry up" by a score, "Because he ain't got 'nary red."

How rude is the sound of "old horse," And "Johnny Roach," too, is as bad; It excites in our bosoms remorse— As well as the "last run of shad."

Come, editors, give us a "lift." Or the evil you'll certainly rue, What if it, if people are "nailed?" The world will cry, "Bully for you!"

BOYS, DO YOU HEAR THAT.—Under the above head, the Hollidaysburg Register says:—"Andrew Carnegie has been promoted to the honorable and responsible position of Superintendent of the Western Division of the Penna. Railroad! Only a few years ago he went into the service of the Company in the capacity of an errand boy for the Superintendent's office at Pittsburg. From that humble position to his present proud one, he has made his way with no other helps or influences than a faithful and watchful regard to the interests of his employers and a careful and prompt discharge of the duties of his place. He has received the reward of merit;—and his success is such a striking incentive to like conduct on the part of all boys in all places that you should never forget it. Be attentive, be industrious, honest and faithful, like Mr. Carnegie, and like him sooner or later you will get a rich reward." Mark that, boys—and girls.

ICE HOUSES.—We notice that several buildings for the preservation of the "warm weather luxury"—ice—are being erected by some of our citizens this winter. Well, an ice-house is certainly a nice thing, and we do so like an iced lemonade. From present indications, we think there will be no difficulty in obtaining the wherewith to fill them.

AN EDITOR GONE.—We find the following in the Indiana papers:—"Married, on the 1st instant, by the Rev. D. Blair, Mr. GEORGE ROW, JR., to Miss SARAH J. MYERS, both of White township.

HEN M'PIKE, the junior editor of the Echo, paid us a short visit yesterday afternoon. He reports himself as laboring under good health.

FASHIONS.—As an item of interest to our lady readers, we insert the following paragraph:—"Bonnets at Paris are increasing daily in size. They are very high in front, come over the forehead, and entirely conceal the hair; frightful things, I think. Belts of gold and silver braid, with old shaped buckles, like little shields, are the rage; they are mostly enamelled with Byzantine, Chinese or arabesque designs, and are very handsome. Then there are the most extraordinary trimmings for dresses, perfectly military, called Garniture des Guites, Garniture de l'Etat Major; they are made up of epaulettes, aiguillette, cords, &c., in gold and ribbon lace, and jet beads. The moire antique, superb as it is, has ceded to satin; some tartans in this stuff are exquisite. Hoops are descending and increasing in size; the lower circumference of a lady's dress is something marvellous."

COL. WILLIAM A. TODD.—Our esteemed friend, William A. Todd, Esq., of Indiana, has been for some time back seriously indisposed by disease of the liver. We are sorry to say that his illness has been of that malignant character that but little hope has been entertained of his recovery; the last accounts, however, give some indications for hope that he may yet be spared for further usefulness in his various relations. The Colonel is a gentleman possessing talents of a high order, and has arrived at a full degree of eminence in his profession as a lawyer, while his manly and generous bearing have won for him a large circle of friends who feel a deep interest in his restoration to health.—Blairsville Record.

THOSE SEGARS.—Our paper of last week, containing that small notice of the superiority of M'Cague's cigars, had hardly been issued, when that generous and whole-souled individual, with an eye single to the our wants, laid on our table a box of the identical Habanas. We can safely state that we did them entire justice, and while the fragrant and perfumed volumes of smoke arose from them, we thought pityingly on those unfortunate fellow beings who were condemned to puff at cheap cigars and short-stemmed pipes, while M'Cague kept those on hand.

ANOTHER LAMP EXPLOSION.—It would appear as if pine-oil is unusually explosive, or people unusually careless, or lamps unusually dilapidated, just at present. On Monday night, the lamp which lights the store of Thomas Devine, Esq., being in a leaky condition, caught fire, but was extinguished before any damage was done. After a few more episodes of like character, we would not be at all surprised to hear of the sudden abandonment of the use of pine-oil and fluid, to a great extent, by our citizens. Be careful, at all events.

JUGGED.—On Monday last, numerous highly inebriated and very pugacious individuals, strangers in attendance at Court, were arrested and "sent up," in consequence of their desire to break each other's heads and the peace of the borough. They seemed considerably disgusted at the want of appreciation by our citizens of their scientific attainments, as also at their non-combatant dispositions. Served them right!

LIBERAL.—The citizens of Rock Island must be a patriotic and liberal set. The Washington Monument Contribution Box, for that place, which had been up just one month, was opened lately, and the contents counted up, when it was found that the grand total amounted to just 28 cents! Wait until you hear the monthly report of our box—the one that M'Cague, the Post Master, is putting up!

LYCEUM.—The following question has been selected for discussion at the Lyceum on Friday evening next: Resolved.—That the United States Government should not pay the expenses of the trial and execution of the Harper's Ferry Insurrectionists.

RETURNED.—Our friends, J. Patton Thompson, with Aldridge & Co., and Jas M. Thompson, with Wardle & Stevenson, Philadelphia, have returned on a visit to their mountain home. May they enjoy it!

AN EDITOR GONE.—We find the following in the Indiana papers:—"Married, on the 1st instant, by the Rev. D. Blair, Mr. GEORGE ROW, JR., to Miss SARAH J. MYERS, both of White township.
